Youth, young adults and some adult assistants prepared for the annual Easter Breakfast by dyeing eggs. The youth and young adults raised $310 to be donated to Lutheran World Relief. Thanks to all members and visitors for supporting this ministry of Mt. Carmel.

Please support our Nigerian ministry partners

The May 3rd Sunday offering will be in support of Nigerian ministry partners Bayo and Mary Beth Oyebade. The Oyebades operate the Mashiah Foundation in Jos, Nigeria.

The Foundation:

- operates a clinic with free HIV treatment, including counselling, nursing care, and consultation services. The clinic also runs a food support program for patients in great need;
- desires to improve the quality of lives of children by providing them with food, shelter, school fees, health care and counseling;
- operates a Sewing Training Program with over 100 HIV positive women in order to help them sustain themselves and their families, while empowering them with confidence and financial sustenance; and
- runs a youth ministry with computer training programs, discipleship and leadership programs, and HIV awareness.

Please consider giving to Mt. Carmel's Nigerian ministry partners during the 3rd Sunday of May.

PASTOR'S PEN

The Seven Virtues of Mt. Carmel

As we live into the Easter season as members of Christ's body, we consider what it means for us as a congregation to die and rise again. At a time when every church is facing change and transition to adjust to a new time, God promises resurrection or rebirth for us: Mt. Carmel for a new time, reaching people with the gospel message in new ways. This is a very positive message and yet there is something intimidating as well. That's because we think about the dying part. For we who are in Christ, any time there's change, even when it's good change, there is death. The old dies and we are led to believe that whatever new life there is, it will be completely new and unfamiliar. That's where we would be wrong!

For instance, when Jesus was raised from the dead, was he a completely new creation? No. He was still Jesus. There were all kinds of continuities between his new life and his life on earth. True, he was not always recognizable to his followers, so his appearance seemed to be different. But did Jesus' mission and commitment to the poor and the sick change? Did Jesus desire any less to forgive people of their sins? Of course not. We know this because by the power of the Holy Spirit, Jesus passed on his work to his followers. Then they became the healers, forgivers, bearers of good news to the poor.

The change in Jesus' life was real enough: he died! But his death had to happen for sin and death to be defeated and then that defeat shared with humanity.

So what's the point I'm making? Simply this. Mt. Carmel faces new times and changes ahead. Significant ones. But we'll still be Mt. Carmel, doing the very things that have made us special and important to the life of the Waite Park neighborhood and beyond. As we work on the strategic plan for the next several years, God's Spirit has led us to remember that we are not simply working on a plan to address our weaknesses (although we are!). More importantly, we are working on a plan that correctly identifies our strengths as a congregation, and then builds on them! We want to make sure that we can recognize the ways that God has uniquely blessed us and been present with us, and then build on them! This is the way forward for us into the future, developing the energy and gifts that God has already given to us.

We will be learning more than ever to tap these stories and pay attention to where God has shown up in our life together at Mt. Carmel. On the strategic planning team, as we have studied surveys you've filled out in the last couple of years, things you've said in focus groups and in informal conversations, we have a pretty good sense of the felt needs. But we also have paid attention to the clear strengths/blessings that this congregation has. We are calling them the seven virtues of Mt. Carmel! There are more, of course. We may have to expand the list. But see if this matches what you think our strengths and blessings are:

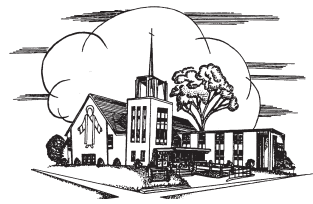

Our shared experience of Jesus' welcome embrace in worship.

Our rich tradition, legacy and identity.

Our hunger for and openness to new expressions of faith.

Our rich tapestry of generations.

The Social Ministry Committee is collecting eye glasses and forwarding them to the Lions Club for reuse. The collection box will be next to the office. Just look for the box with the big blue eyeglasses on it. We will be collecting glasses through Aug. 31. Time to clean out the drawers and cabinets and donate those old pair of glasses!

ALTAR GUILD SEEKS ADDITIONAL MEMBERS

Altar Guild wants to add to our membership roster. Members setup and cleanup the altar for worship. We divide the year into teams of two or three. We serve by month of Sundays at time about twice a year. It requires about 45 minutes to setup the altar and make sure the pews are stocked with pencils and pew envelopes. Clean up is about 15-30 minutes after worship to wash and store the communion items. Working in teams makes quick work of the setup and cleanup and ensures that there is always someone ready to serve. Interested? Call Kathy Halverson or the church office.

JOIN US FOR KNIT NIGHT

Beginning in May, Knit Night will meet once a month on the second Thursday of the month. We meet in the Fireside Room from 6:30-8:30 p.m. Questions? Contact Jenni Lathrop, 612-205-6007.

From the pastor, continued from 2

Our willingness to step up and serve.

Our consistent generosity.

Our heart for feeding and helping our neighbors.

I hope you feel that we are in the ballpark. We will refine these some more as we learn to celebrate God's gifts to us. And make no mistake about it, these gifts and the stories behind them will point the way where God is leading us. Certainly, there will be new expressions of these themes, even resurrections, but our resurrections will always be about becoming more fully who we already are!

Have a blessed Easter season!

God's Peace, Pastor John

FROM THE OFFICE

The budding trees and blossoming flowers usually get me thinking about my relationship to the earth. With which landscapes do I have a connection? What do I associate with land? What are my priorities? How does my relationship to the earth influence how I think about God?

I've always enjoyed being outside, exploring the woods around my house growing up in Oklahoma, hiking with my husband in the Adirondacks and Shenandoah Valley, farming for a summer among the rolling hills in western New York. I feel most "me," my truest self, when I'm out in God's creation. I feel closer to God, too, because I'm intimately surrounded by what God has created—not what humankind has created.

How to describe my relationship to the earth? One of parent and child. One of teacher and student. I'm the child and student, learning from and being cared for by God through creation. I also see myself in a position "over" creation as caregiver and steward—not over creation in dominion but in love and care. Then I become the parent and teacher. Throughout scripture (even Leviticus of all places!) we see God loving and caring for creation, and we humans, made in God's image, are to tend the garden, too. In Genesis 2, we see God's intention from the very beginning of creation to make something "to till the ground" (Genesis 2:5). We then learn that humankind is that something.

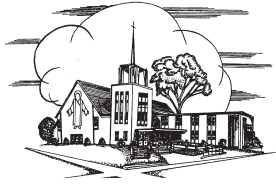

I always look through that theological lens—God as creator, caregiver, lover of the natural world. And we are part of that, too, not only caregiver to the earth but loved fiercely by God as part of creation. But we're different, set apart, from the natural world, too, and it's that difference that we ponder.

Isabel Vitale, Office Administrator

Council notes for March/April 2017

- Strategic Planning Presentation: After the March meeting, the Strategic Planning Team refined their focus and presentation. The April presentation was a concise plan recapping our mission, our vision, and strategic priorities. They are continuing to work on some of the initiatives within the plan. The council will be looking forward to their next presentation in May. (They're on track to make a full presentation at the council retreat in July.) Presentation to the membership is pending for late summer or fall.
- The council is working on a form to improve communications between standing committees and the council. Since not all committees have council representation, committees will be able to report their activities and if needed, request help from the council via a form. The council can use this communication to coordinate activities between groups, etc.
- It's recommended that Mt. Carmel members view the Minneapolis Area Synod website monthly, <http://mpls-synod.org/events-page/>, for Synod news and events. There are upcoming events that will be of interest to our members.
- The council is working to update our agreement with Casa.

Lutheran bite

Digging deeper into our faith in bite-sized pieces

Let's continue our mini-exploration of Luther's catechism.

In March, we heard a little about confession. After confession, Luther talks about the sacrament of the altar. He asks and then answers these five questions:

1. What is the Sacrament of the Altar?
2. Where is this written?
3. What is the benefit of this eating and drinking?
4. How can bodily eating and drinking do such great things?
5. Who receives this sacrament worthily?

Want to find out how Luther answers?

Go to <http://catechism.cph.org>.
